

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Art Collecting of Dutch Art in the 17th Century

The _____ Golden Age was a period of great wealth and cultural achievement. Many people became interested in _____, leading to a high demand for paintings. Artists like _____ and Vermeer became famous for their unique styles. Wealthy _____ and aristocrats started collecting art as a symbol of status. Cities like _____ became centers for art trade. The popularity of _____ such as landscapes, still lifes, and portraits grew. Collectors often sought works that depicted _____ life, showcasing the beauty in ordinary moments. Art auctions and dealers played a crucial role in the _____, making art more accessible to a broader audience. The influence of these collections on _____ was significant, shaping future generations' appreciation for art. The legacy of Dutch art from the _____ century continues to be celebrated in museums around the world. This era also saw the rise of _____ criticism and theory, further enriching the cultural landscape. The passion for collecting during this time helped preserve many masterpieces we admire today.

culture

Amsterdam

17th

everyday

art

Dutch

merchants

Rembrandt

art

market

genres