

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Christopher Marlowe

Christopher _____ was a key figure in Elizabethan theatre, making a significant impact with his dramatic works. Born in _____ in 1564, he was a contemporary of _____. Marlowe's plays are known for their _____ verse and deep exploration of human _____. His first play, Dido, Queen of _____, showcased his ability to weave classical themes with poetic language. One of his most famous works, _____ Faustus, delves into the themes of ambition and the supernatural, captivating audiences with its complex _____ and moral questions. Marlowe's _____ the Great, part one and two, introduced the use of grandiose language and the concept of the _____ protagonist to English drama. His untimely death at the age of _____ in a tavern brawl remains shrouded in mystery, with theories suggesting espionage and _____ intrigue. Despite his brief career, Marlowe's influence on Elizabethan drama and subsequent literature is undeniable, paving the way for the richness of _____ that followed in the late 16th and early 17th centuries.

playwriting

emotions

Shakespeare

29

overreaching

Tamburlaine

political

character

Doctor

blank

Marlowe

Canterbury

Carthage