

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Cold War

The _____ was a period of geopolitical tension between the _____ and the _____. It began after World War II and lasted until the early 1990s. This _____ was marked by political, military, and economic struggles. The two superpowers never engaged in direct _____, but they fought indirectly in conflicts known as proxy wars. One of the most notable aspects was the _____ arms race, as both nations amassed large arsenals of nuclear weapons. The _____ became a powerful symbol of the divide between the capitalist West and the communist East. In _____, the rivalry led to significant advancements, including the first human landing on the _____. The Cuban Missile _____ in 1962 was a critical moment, bringing the world close to nuclear war. The Cold War also saw the use of _____ to spread ideologies and influence public opinion. The conflict ended with the dissolution of the Soviet Union, marking a significant change in _____ politics.

Cold War nuclear space United States warfare era Crisis propaganda Berlin Wall Soviet Union moon global