

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Educational Milestones in Early Russian History

In the early history of Russia, _____ was largely influenced by the Orthodox Church. The first schools were established in the 10th century, focusing on religious studies and the _____ of the church. These schools taught students to read and write, with a strong emphasis on religious texts like the _____. Over time, the curriculum expanded to include subjects such as mathematics, history, and _____, reflecting the broader educational trends in Europe.

Education was not widely accessible to everyone. Initially, it was reserved for the _____ and clergy, leaving the majority of the population illiterate. However, the importance of education started to be recognized, and by the 17th century, efforts were made to make _____ more widely available.

One significant figure in the development of Russian education was _____ IV, also known as Ivan the Terrible. He established the School of _____, Rhetoric, and Philosophy in Moscow, which marked a departure from purely religious education towards a more comprehensive _____.

Despite these advancements, the progress of education in Russia was slow compared to Western Europe. The vast distances, harsh _____, and social disparities made it difficult to establish a uniform educational system. Nevertheless, the foundations laid during this _____ were crucial for the development of Russian education.

By the 18th century, under the reign of Peter the Great, _____ began to undergo extensive reforms. Peter's efforts to modernize Russia included transforming the education _____ by introducing technical and scientific subjects to the curriculum and establishing new schools that were accessible to a broader _____ of the population.

These early steps in education played a pivotal role in shaping the intellectual and cultural _____ of Russia, setting the stage for the country's future developments.

- system
- period
- curriculum
- Russia
- schooling
- teachings
- landscape
- Bible
- nobility
- philosophy
- climates
- segment
- Ivan
- Grammar
- education