

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Guinea's Place in the World

In West Africa, there is a country known as _____. It's known for its rich biodiversity, including dense forests, mountains, and coastal areas. The capital city is _____, which is located on the country's Atlantic coast. Guinea plays a crucial role in the export of _____, which is an ore used to produce aluminum. The _____ river, one of Africa's major rivers, has its sources in the Guinean _____. This country's economy is heavily dependent on _____, with rice being the staple food. Despite its natural _____, Guinea faces challenges such as political instability and poverty. The Fouta _____ highlands are considered the water tower of West Africa, providing water to many neighboring _____. Guinea's population is diverse, with more than 24 ethnic groups living together. The _____ of Guinea is well-respected worldwide, with traditional instruments like the _____ playing a significant role. Education in Guinea has been improving, but still faces obstacles such as limited _____ to schools and materials. Guinea's national football team, known as the _____ Nationale, is a source of national pride.

music

Conakry

resources

countries

access

Syli

Niger

highlands

Djallon

Guinea

bauxite

agriculture

kora