

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

King James I and the Ulster Plantation

King James I played a key role in the _____ of Ulster. He wanted to control Ireland and suppress rebellion. The plan was to settle loyal _____ on lands taken from native Irish Catholics. This would secure his rule and spread _____.

The plantation began in the early 1600s. Land was taken from Irish _____ who had rebelled. These lands were granted to settlers from England and Scotland. They were _____ large estates to farm and develop.

James I saw this as a way to stabilize _____. He believed the new settlers would be loyal and help defend against further uprisings. The settlers built _____ and brought new agriculture techniques. This changed the landscape and _____ of Ulster.

The native Irish were displaced. Many lost their homes and _____. This led to further conflict and tension. The division between Protestants and _____ grew deeper. The effects of the plantation can still be seen in _____ Ireland today.

- Catholics
- society
- Protestants
- towns
- Ireland
- given
- livelihoods
- chiefs
- Northern
- plantation
- Protestantism