Knights of the Hundred Years' War

During the Hundred Years' War, the role of _____ was pivotal in shaping the conflict and the era. Knights were highly skilled _____ who fought on horseback, their armor shining in the sun. They adhered to the code of _____, which emphasized virtues such as bravery, courtesy, and honor. The war saw numerous _____ where knights demonstrated their prowess and valor. They wielded _____ and lances, charging into the fray with their horses. The _____ they lived in were not just homes, but fortresses that played key roles in strategic defense. Knights also participated in _____, which were contests of skill and strength serving as training for warfare. Their _____ bore unique insignias, identifying them on the battlefield. The _____ led to significant changes in military tactics, notably the rise of _____, which challenged the dominance of knights. Despite this, the legend of the knight in shining _____ persisted as an ideal of medieval chivalry. The peasants, who made up the _____ of the population, had vastly different lives from the knights but were crucial in supporting the war _____ through agriculture. The conflict ultimately reshaped European _____, with knighthood evolving but enduring as a symbol of the medieval warrior spirit.
