

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Medieval Ireland's Round Towers

The round towers of _____ are ancient structures, often found near churches. These towers were built during the _____ period. Historians believe they served as bell towers, watchtowers, or places of refuge. The towers are tall, with most standing over 100 feet high. They have a distinct _____ shape, which makes them unique.

The entrance to a tower is usually several feet above the _____, requiring a ladder to access. This design was likely for _____ against intruders. The towers have narrow _____, strategically placed to provide light and ventilation. Their walls are made of stone and are incredibly _____, ensuring strength and durability.

One famous example is the _____ tower in County Offaly. This tower is part of a historic monastic site. It overlooks the River _____, providing a strategic view of the surrounding area. Another notable tower is at _____, in County Wicklow. This site is known for its beautiful natural scenery and historical significance.

Round towers are part of _____ cultural heritage. They symbolize the country's rich _____ and architectural ingenuity. These towers are not only historical landmarks but also attract numerous _____ each year. They continue to be a subject of fascination and study for historians and architects alike.

Glendalough Ireland's tourists windows protection ground Shannon Clonmacnoise medieval Ireland cylindrical thick history