

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Medieval Welsh Manuscripts

The _____ were a time of vibrant culture and learning, particularly in Wales. During this period, Welsh scholars and monks devoted themselves to the creation of _____. These handwritten texts were not just books; they were works of _____, adorned with intricate illustrations and decorations. The most famous Welsh manuscript is the _____, a collection of legendary tales. It includes stories of _____, magical creatures, and ancient kings. Another significant text is the _____, which contains poems attributed to the bard Taliesin. These poems provide a glimpse into the rich _____ tradition of Wales.

In these manuscripts, the Welsh language is showcased in its most _____ form. The language used was _____, a predecessor to the Welsh we know today. Manuscripts were often written on _____, a durable material made from animal skin. This was a painstaking process, as each page had to be carefully prepared and written by hand. The creation of a manuscript was a _____ effort. It involved not only the scribe, but also artists who added _____ - decorative elements like borders and initial letters. These illuminations often featured Celtic designs and patterns, reflecting the distinct _____ identity of Wales.

Manuscripts played a key role in preserving the _____ and literature of Medieval Wales. They tell us a lot about the beliefs, values, and daily life of people during that time. Today, these manuscripts are treasured as crucial links to Wales' _____ and are studied by scholars around the world.

cultural	manuscripts	past	Middle Welsh	Middle Ages	history	collaborative oral	illuminations	Mabinogion	heroes	vellum	art	Book of Taliesin	elegant