

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

Metalwork Mastery in Colonial America

In Colonial America, _____ played a crucial role in society. They created beautiful and functional items out of _____. One of the most common forms of metalwork was _____. Artisans like Paul Revere became famous for their _____. Silversmiths often made items such as _____, bowls, and _____. These items were not just for use; they also showed the _____ and status of their owners.

Another popular form of metalwork was _____. Blacksmiths made essential tools like _____, nails, and _____. They worked with _____, shaping it while it was hot. Their work was vital for both everyday life and the _____. Blacksmiths were considered the backbone of the _____ settlements.

Iron was not the only metal used. _____ and brass were also popular, especially for items like _____. These metals were easier to shape than iron. Artisans also made decorative items like _____. These pieces showcased their artistic _____.

The metalwork of this era reflects the _____ and culture of Colonial America. Each piece tells a story of the people and their _____. Artisans combined European techniques with new _____ styles. This fusion created a unique art form that is still admired today.

metal spoons kettles wealth Copper cups lives iron silversmithing history craftsmanship horseshoes skills candlesticks artisans hammers blacksmithing colonial economy American