

name: class: date:

Rococo Fashion Elegance

Rococo fashion, known for its _____, flourished in the 18th century. It was characterized by delicate _____, intricate patterns, and luxurious fabrics. Women's dresses were especially _____, often featuring wide hoopskirts that made a grand statement. These dresses were adorned with _____, ribbons, and flowers, emphasizing femininity and beauty. Men's clothing was equally _____, with knee-length coats, silk stockings, and heeled shoes being the _____. This era also saw the introduction of the wig, a symbol of status and _____.

Rococo style was not just about clothing; it extended to _____ as well. Fans, snuffboxes, and jewelry were essential for both men and women. These items were often _____ with pearls and precious stones, adding to the overall _____ of the look. Hairstyles were elaborate, with women's hair piled high and _____ with feathers or jewels.

This period's fashion was a reflection of the _____ of the time, which valued artistry and elegance above all. The Rococo style, with its emphasis on _____ and the ornate, was a clear departure from the more restrained fashions of previous _____. It represented a world of opulence and grandeur, an era where fashion was an _____ form in its own right.

opulent	elegant	decorated	lace	society	colors	fashion	art
accessories	norm	extravagance	luxury	eras	decoration	decorated	