

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

The Art of Rococo Tapestry

In the 18th century, _____ was buzzing with a new artistic movement known as the Rococo style. This style was known for its _____ details, pastel colors, and playful themes. Rococo was not just limited to paintings or sculptures; it greatly influenced the design of _____ as well. These tapestries were used to decorate the walls of _____ and noble homes, adding warmth and luxury. A typical Rococo tapestry featured _____ scenes, often inspired by nature or mythology. The scenes were surrounded by elaborate borders filled with _____ and intricate patterns. Artists who designed these tapestries paid great attention to detail, ensuring that every _____ contributed to the overall beauty. The most famous tapestry factories were in _____, especially in Beauvais and Gobelins. The colors used in Rococo tapestries were usually soft and _____. Unlike the darker, more dramatic colors of the Baroque style, Rococo favored pinks, blues, and _____. These colors helped create a light, airy feel typical of Rococo art. The _____ in these tapestries was also unique, often highlighting certain aspects of the scene to draw the viewer's eye. Materials used in Rococo tapestries were of the highest _____. Silk and wool were commonly used, sometimes even gold and silver _____ to add a touch of opulence. The production of a single tapestry could take many _____, even years, due to the complexity of the designs and the care put into the weaving. In the modern world, Rococo tapestries are valued as _____. They are displayed in museums and admired for their historical significance and artistic beauty. They remind us of a time when art was not just seen but also _____, as these tapestries were as much about texture as they were about appearance.

lighting	quality	Europe	tapestries	threads	thread	France	flowers months	romantic	palaces	antiques	felt	delicate	golds	ornate