

name: _____

class: _____

date: _____

The Impact of London on Medieval Development

In the Middle Ages, _____ became one of the most important cities in England. It was located on the River _____, making it a perfect spot for trade. Merchants from all over _____ would come to London to buy and sell goods. The city's _____ grew rapidly, as people moved there for work and better _____. One of the most significant events in London's history was the establishment of the _____ in 1128, which helped regulate trade and commerce. London's _____ were bustling with activity, selling everything from spices to textiles. The _____ often visited London, which increased its importance and political _____. Education also flourished in London, with the founding of schools and libraries. The Black _____ in the 14th century did slow its growth temporarily, but London quickly recovered. By the end of the Middle _____, London had established itself as a vital center for trade, politics, and _____ in England. Its development played a crucial role in the economic and urban _____ of medieval England.

Guildhall

Europe

opportunities

Ages

Death

Thames

population

power

growth

London

culture

marketplaces

King